“ Amy,
I don't have the words to make this better for you, no one does. You and her were so close and her passing has left a huge hole in your heart I'm sure. There's no moving on, only forward and that pain in your chest that makes it hard to breathe when you think of not hearing her voice or giving her a hug again, it does get a little lighter as the years go on, but it can come back and suck the life out of you without warning. There are no right or wrong ways to grieve and those damn 5 stages can happen in any order, and can last forever! You guys were a team for a long time! I have good memories of her, especially the last time I saw her! She was so happy to catch up and I was happy to see her smiling! I know she was suffering and while we're down here missing them I have to believe that they (your mom and my dad) are just chillin! Free from all their pain and suffering. I love you so much and plan to see you soon my friend! Big hugs to you all! May you Rest In Peace Diane

“ Layla,

Thank you so much for the beautiful words. I am glad you were able to visit with her when you did. She is definitely having a reunion with your dad. Hope to see you soon, love you.
