“ One moment we're running through the halls of middle school and getting on one another's nerves, then years later, he's taken away from Earth too soon. We never got along, Zach, however i never wished any harm on you. Rest in peace, man!

“ What a beautiful young man, take a good look at what you've taken, this could have been your brother... he had so much life ahead of him, he was so special, Y'all out there killin your own, for what, don't he matter? Rest in Peace, Zach, you didn't deserve an end like this, I hope justice is served, you deserve that much, may god watch over your family and be with them in this time of sorrow.

“ What is the point of protesting when we are killing our selves at an alarming rate. Before we can expect peace from anyone else we have to go into these streets and teach it to our own. It's ok to forgive, we hate ourselves enough to continue to kill each other. This has to stop. Syracuse is predominantly black and this place is a gold mine because how much wealth can be built here. There is so much opportunity and still our kids are made to believe we live in a poor city. How is it that on of the biggest mall in America is in the poorest city? Another black life lost. Got dam it would sorry not been enough, did you think maybe he would be a husband or father and his family would need him to lead and protect. If you can hate enough to kill then you deserve to be killed. The people can't afford another person to got to jail at of hard working expense. Og's against violence isn't enough. Again how can we expect to stop being killed by police when we are killing each other. We are teaching and telling other that we don't value our own. Rest in peace. May god have mercy on your youg sole gone to soon. I can't ce sad because in to enraged at our own people.
